President's Message

The Association of Applied Paleontological Sciences (AAPS) welcomes you to the 2020 Tucson Gem, Mineral and Fossil Show. Inside this show guide, you will find all you need to locate the finest fossil, mineral and gemstone dealers from all corners of the globe.

We are a proud organization that is dedicated to helping you find the right products, whether they be fossils, minerals, preparation tools or even adhesives and we will give you all the help and information you need to get you going in the right direction. All of our members agree to comply with our code of ethics (see page 44) and we strive to make sure that you can count on us now as well as in the future.

AAPS encourages all who care about the hobby of rock, mineral and fossil collecting to become informed on the many rules and regulations that affect our specific areas of interest! We owe it to future generations to become involved and to participate in the rule-making procedures to ensure that laws and regulations reflect the needs of the people while preserving the integrity of the science.

I urge you to become proactive, be concerned, and most of all, to get involved!!! Our hobby and vocation will disappear if we don't start to make the necessary changes that work now and will work for the future generations of rock hounds.

Our "Annual Meeting" and "Guest Speaker" event days are reversed for 2020 due to scheduling conflicts. Our annual meeting/dinner/auction will be held on Friday, February 7th in the same ballroom at the University of Arizona. Please see page 8 for more details on location and shuttle bus access to and from the event.

At the dinner this year, there will be a special presentation to Dr. Luis Chiappe from the Los Angeles County Museum. Many years ago Dr. John Nudds, Senior Lecturer in Earth Sciences at the University of Manchester and current AAPS member, and Terry Manning, an expert preparator of fossils from many different localities and also a current AAPS member, conducted a preparation experiment on a number of titanosaur eggs from Argentina. They used a new "acid etching" preparation technique, initially developed by Terry Manning, to expose unborn embryonic skeletons from within the fossil dinosaur eggs. A number of well preserved skulls were exposed for the first time, identifying the dinosaur species which had laid these eggs.

Because the eggs had not been exported from Argentina through all the proper channels, this project had to be privately funded. Now, in order to be able to publish the findings of this project, Terry is generously donating this specimen to the Museo Municipal "Carmen Funes" in Argentina. Dr. Chiappe has kindly agreed to take possession of the beautifully prepared egg and repatriate it back to Argentina. AAPS is proud to be a part of this process.

Our Guest Speaker will present on Saturday, February 8th at the YWCA facility on Bonito Drive instead of the usual Friday evening presentation. I am extremely excited to welcome Dr. Donald Wolberg as our 2020 special guest presenter for our AAPS Tucson Speaker Series.

Dr. Wolberg is a paleontologist and geologist formerly with the New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology. Currently, Dr. Wolberg is an Adjunct Professor at New Mexico Tech. He is best known as the founder of "Dinofest."

Don has vast experience in Paleontology and Geology and has worked with too many Federal, State and Regional government agencies to mention as well as numerous private sector companies. He has written in excess of 100 papers, reports and abstracts; many in popular publications. This is truly an event not to miss!

Please make your reservation to attend this talk; it is Free to attend but seating is limited! Please see page 20 for more information.

I wish all of you have a happy and prosperous 2020!

Sincerely,

John Issa
AAPS President

AAPS Scholarships and Grants

The Association of Applied Paleontological Sciences (AAPS), is a non-profit organization of primarily professional commercial paleontologists promoting science. AAPS offers two $1000 scholarships to graduate level students in paleontology attending universities worldwide and two $1000 research grants. All of the scholarships and research grants are awarded to the applicants by a majority vote of the membership attending our annual meeting in Tucson every February. Each scholarship and grant is awarded to students and researchers who qualify and meet the approval of the board of directors, along with a majority of the membership. Applications for these programs must be received by December 1st to be considered by the membership the following year.

For more information, please visit our website www.aaps.net

James R. Welch Scholarship

The James R. Welch Scholarship is awarded to graduate level students who study and work on macro invertebrate fossils. AAPS initiated this scholarship in 1990 in order to encourage students interested in paleontological invertebrate studies.

Charles Sternberg Scholarship

The Charles Sternberg Scholarship is awarded to graduate level students who study and work on macro vertebrate fossils. AAPS initiated this scholarship in 1991 in order to offer encouragement to students in vertebrate studies.

A. Allen Graffham Research Grant

The $1,000 Grant, is awarded to a select researcher that publishes on specimens collected by, or in collaboration with, AAPS members. AAPS offers this research grant annually to a scientist, researcher, or student in paleontology.

René M. Vandervelde Research Grant

The $1000 Grant is available to qualified researchers working on the marine paleontology, geology, or stratigraphy of the Late Cretaceous Pierre and Bearpaw Shales of North America. Through this grant, Korite® International hopes to encourage scientific research and publications on the fauna from these deposits.

Dan Rigel Memorial Educational Grant

This grant worth up to $1,000 will be awarded to a High School teacher(s) or High School educator to promote the education of their students in geology and paleontology.

How to Apply

Applications need to be in our scholarship office by December 1 to be considered by the Board. Please visit the website at www.aaps.net for additional details.

Applications should be addressed to:

Guest Speaker Dr. Donald Wolberg

"The Adventures of a Peripatetic Paleontologist; From the South Bronx to Dinofest and Beyond"

Dr. Donald Wolberg, is a geologist/paleontologist and considered by his students to be a living fossil. His unrepentant graduate students picked "aragonite" as his email address after an unstable double carbonate they suggested matched his personality. He was born in the Hunts Point section of the South Bronx, thought to be the model for the film, Blackboard Jungle, and where every election politicians arrived (with armed security) to proclaim from empty lots and burnt out buildings, the need for urban renewal. He is the founder of the Dinofest programs, well known to many professional and academic paleontologists.

Seating is Limited - Reservations Required

WHAT TO SEE IN TUCSON 2020

Fossil dealers with spectacular specimens can be found at many of the shows around Tucson. No matter what you are shopping for, you can find it in our product section starting on page 50. If you're looking for a specific dealer, check our Dealer/Member section starting on page 30.

Here are just a few of the specimens waiting for your visit;

A newly remounted Tyrannosaurus rex offered by Geodecor can be seen in their gallery at the Mineral Fossil Co-op

The Mineral Fossil Alley, Days Inn Show on the South Freeway and St. Mary's has a plethora of fossil dealers and specimens to see. This year, Paleo Tex will have a new large Permian rare amphibian called "Archeria" on display in their room (107 & 109). The skeleton is almost 9 feet long.

The Mineral Fossil Co-op has a number of well-known fossil dealers exhibiting this year. Neal Larson, better known as the Ammonite Guy, always has spectacular American-Grown ammonites available to the discerning collector. Visit his booth next to Bill Barker's Sahara Sea store.

The Hotel Tucson City Center has many fossil dealers spread throughout the hotel. The Fossil Ballroom is a must visit at the Hotel. Anthony Lindgren, owner of Lindgren Fossils LLC, will have this massive turtle available for viewing during the show.

Mike Triebold, Triebold Paleontology always has several new and exciting specimens on display. Among others this year, is this bizarre new pterosaur reconstruction known as Cycnorhamphus which can be seen near his booth at the 22nd Street Show.

AAPS ADVOCATE 2019-2020

In the Lab wearing the PaleoBond Lab Coat

AAPS honors the person or company that successfully bids on the PALEOBOND Lab Coat during our annual meeting. The lab coat was donated by Bill Mason during the 1995 AAPS auction and has been auctioned off every year since. The winner has the coat for one year and is required to bring it back the following year to be auctioned again. The recipient of the 2019 AAPS Advocate recognition is Anthony Lindgren owner of Lindgren Fossils LLC.

Anthony was exposed to commercial paleontology at a young age, accompanying his father Tom Lindgren to Green River Formation quarries near Kemmerer Wyoming. He watched and learned how to spot fossils buried in the rock, how to extract and prepare the earthly treasures within. You can say that Anthony and his brothers grew up in the business.

From a young age, Anthony was making discoveries, one of his first in the early 90's was the Holotype of a new species of Frigate bird named Limnofregata hasegawai. Other specimens include a bipinnate leaf named Arcoa lindgreni, later donated to the Field Museum by his father Tom Lindgren, the

5-year-old Anthony with his father splitting rock at the quarry

and prepped by Anthony*

largest monitor lizard skeleton from North America, juvenile birds, turtles of all sizes, and the largest crocodile ever found in the green river formation.

After starting his first business in 1999, he also worked as an assistant quarry manager for the Green River Stone Company. In 2007 he started Fossils by Anthony Lindgren and continued to build his clientel. During 2014 he created Lindgren Fossils LLC. Over the years, Lindgren Fossils has discovered some pretty spectacular Green River Formation Fossils in both the split fish and 18" layers. Anthony and the company continue to find and prepare new specimens each year, surprising visitors to the Hotel Tucson City Center with spectacular pieces from the Green River Formation.

While in Tucson for the show, visit Anthony at the Hotel Tucson City Center, in the Ballroom. His ad is on Page 17 in this guide. The company has a website; www.LindgrenFossils.com.

Lindgren Fossils LLC can also be found on Facebook, or search for #LindgrenFossilsllc. Lindgren Fossils LLC attends both the Tucson and Denver shows annually.

AAPS CODE OF ETHICS

1. Strive to stay informed of and comply with International, National, State/Provincial and Local regulations pertaining to collecting activities and general business practices.
2. Obtain permission from landowners or governmental authorities to gain access to collecting sites.
3. Assure that all lands, properties, flora and fauna are left without damage to property or ecology as a result of the collecting activities.
4. Require that fossil materials received from outside collectors are obtained in compliance with the above collecting guidelines set forth by the Association.
5. Report to scientific experts any significant discoveries of scientific or public interest.
6. Strive to place specimens of unique scientific interest into responsible hands for study, research and preservation.
7. Make no misrepresentation as to identity, locality, age, formation, repairs or restoration of paleontological specimens.
8. Members will strive for best business practices in all aspects of business, dealing with customers and other AAPS members in a fair and honest manner and maintaining a good credit standing. AAPS encourages members to follow good ethics but cannot act as a resource to settle disputes between said members or disputes involving customers.
9. Encourage good relations and cooperation with agencies, institutions, and organizations actively involved in paleontological pursuits.

International Fossil Laws

by George F. Winters

This article was written for the AAPS Journal, and is published here to help inform both collectors and fossil dealers. The Journal website can be found at <https://www.aaps-journal.org/>

Events of 2012 and early 2013 have complicated the commercial fossil trade worldwide, opening the eyes of many dealers and buyers as to what has been appropriate to buy and sell for at least the last two decades. Assumptions were made that because no government or governmental agency seemed interested in the sale of fossil material from China and Mongolia, surely it must be legal to buy and sell. Skulls, bones and complete skeletons have been available for over a decade at trade shows, on eBay, and at large, well-known auction houses such as Butterfields, Christies, and Heritage Auctions. The latter conducted large public auctions. A number of major museums sent representatives to many of these events to purchase specimens for their collections and displays.

The fossil market in the United States has been flooded with dinosaurs and eggs from Mongolia, feathered dinosaurs and fossil mammals from China, and fossil fish and pterosaurs from the Santana formation of Brazil. These items can still be found at many of the mineral and fossil shows held around the country. On occasion, it was quietly discussed that there were bans on the export of all of this material, but no one was aware of specific laws regarding the export of fossils from any particular country. Rumors were plentiful and misinformation was abundant, with statements such as "It was legal to export before 2000." or "The import ban did not start until 2002". This was, unfortunately, all hearsay, without any documentation to back it up.

This issue became front-page news when an auction of a Tarbosaurus skeleton took place at the New York City on May 20, 2012. The skeleton and auction had been widely advertised. Ultimately, the president of Mongolia filed issue regarding the auction. As a result, the United States government stepped in and seized the skeleton before the winning bidder could take possession of it.

This incident brought the Mongolian government's laws regarding fossils more clearly to light, and many became aware for the first time, that since 1924, all Mongolian fossils have been considered property of the state. No private collecting was allowed, and no specimens were to have been taken from the country without special permission from the government. This early law was written when the Mongolian People's Republic was formed under Soviet influence. After the breakdown of communism in late 1989, Mongolia saw a democratic revolution in early 1990, which led to a multi-party system, and a new constitution in 1992. However, the same basic law regarding state ownership of cultural items was adopted by each of the succeeding political powers. Mongolia classifies all fossils as cultural items.

The Mongolian law is basic and vague, but it is enough to prevent any fossils from legally leaving the country. Therefore, unless special permission was obtained from the government, all Mongolian fossil specimens brought into the United States since 1924, were smuggled out of Mongolia. Some museums such as the American Museum of Natural History, which sponsors expeditions to Mongolia, have permission to collect and remove specimens for scientific study, but the specimens remain the property of Mongolia and will be returned to the country at some agreed upon time.

Obtaining information on any country's laws and regulations regarding fossil collecting, sales and export, has been a frustrating endeavor. In most cases, there is no single agency for any country that has all of the correct information available. Acquiring a complete list of regulations may involve contacting customs, multiple ministry offices, and local officials. Their answers and the information received are often conflicting; with one entity claiming something is legal and another stating just the opposite. Most of the foreign agencies I have contacted cannot quote their current laws, or supply the actual documentation defining them. Matters are made worse when corrupt customs agents, who may gladly sign export forms for a fee, give the false impression that it is legal to transport specimens out of a country where it is not.

Obviously, fossil laws and regulations affect students and researchers as well as anyone else interested in fossil collecting. As embarrassing as it would be for a public museum to hold a specimen in their collections that was transported from a country where such removal is illegal, it could also be financially devastating to the museum, and certainly to a dealer or a private collector, if that specimen were to be confiscated by a government authority, let alone the possibility of facing criminal charges, as well.

In the United States, documentation is much easier to locate with a little research. Still, many fossil enthusiasts are uninformed regarding what is legal to collect, where it is legal to collect, and if it is legal to sell what is collected.

Documentation of all international and domestic fossil laws pertaining to collecting, export, import and sales, should be published in English and made available to everyone interested in paleontology.

Fortunately for natural history buffs, during 1997, a book titled, "Collecting the Natural World" was written by Dr. Donald Wolberg and his late wife, Patsy Reinard. The book is a wonderful reference regarding fossils, minerals, endangered and protected species, plants and cultural items found throughout the United States. Laws are quoted, permitting procedures and proper state and federal contacts are listed. The book is now out of print but used copies can occasionally be found on eBay and Amazon.com for less than twenty dollars. If you would like a new copy, Dr. Wolberg still has a few available. You can contact him directly at aragonite@msn.com.

The book's six chapters cover state and federal laws pertaining to collecting in all 50 states. This work should be in every natural history and fossil enthusiast's library. Donald Wolberg is working to update his book. A companion section on International Fossil Laws will also be available on the AAPS Journal website.
